PIRATES PLAY REDS ON DECORATION DAY

Forbes Field Will Be the Scene of Two Games on That Day.

Baseball fans of this city and vicinity are tickled to pieces over the fact that the Pittsburgh Pirates will play two games at home on the coming holiday, Decoration day, which comes on a Tuesday this year and is always regarded by baseball fans as the real opening of the summer season.

The games at Forbes Field, with Cincinnati as the attraction on May 30, will start at 10:30 in the morning 3 in the afternoon. Memorial Day is the big day in baseball for the fans of this part of the country. The games at Pittsburgh are sure to be mighty entertaining and interesting. The Cincinnati club, which is booked for both games, is a hard proposition for the Pirate crew, and two close, hot battles can be predicted. Manager Calhoun and his Corsairs will endeavor to win both games, but Manager Herzog and the Reds will fight from the drop of the hat both morning and afternoon.

One of the big things of the games from every standpoint, will be Honus Wagner, who will play shortstop for the Pirates in both contests. John is playing sensationally this season, batting like he did when he led the National League list and fielding in truly magnificent style. He is better than he has been for years.

The Pittsburgh club, for the benefit of its out of town patrons, will continue its old custom of filling mail orders for these and all other games. Mail orders should be addressed to the Pittsburgh Baseball Club, 916 Farmers Bank building, Pittsburgh, Pa. Prices will remain as usual.

The holiday gives everybody a chance to get out in the open air and enjoy the best sport on earth. The games will certainly be mighty interesting. It's indeed fortunate for the local fans that the Corsairs are home on Memorial Day and that the baseball public will take advantage of the schedule offering to see the two games at Forbes Field on Memorial Day goes without saying.

A Mark to Shoot At.
We defy any other prophet, male or female, to tie our record of last Saturday, when we picked only one winner out of eight chances.

A Surprise Party.
There was a regular hurricane of a northwest wind.

It was decided before we went out that Andy was to give Bob a stroke a hole, and Bob was to give papa a stroke a hole, and Andy was to give papa two strokes a hole. Jackpots. See?

The wind was terrific. Andy and Bob made the first in six, owing to the fierce wind. Papa took a nine or thereabouts and the first hole was Bob's.

The wind bothered Bob on the second and he took a seven. Papa required the same number. Andy went one over par with a five. The hole was halved by Andy and papa.

"The best score on the next hole settles that," said Andy.

"All right," said papa.

Bob and Andy were down in strokes on the third, the wind adding a six or two to the total of each. Papa needed a dozen. So the third was Bob's and the second was a total loss to papa.

Andy looked at us compassionately.

"The wind's fierce," he said. Bob shed a few tears of pity. "A man can't tell what he's doing in this wind," he said.

To make a long story short, as the poet so aptly says, the score of the last six holes was as follows:

Andy—5, 6, 7, 4, 7, 4.
Bob—5, 6, 7, 4, 6, 5.
Papa—5, 7, 6, 5, 5, 4.
And there was a regular hurricane of a northwest wind.

"What's the Matter With My Game?"
Nothing.

A Letter to Mr. Weeghman.
Friend Chas. As near as I can figure you have had about two good days since the Cubs been playing in Chicago. But on the Saturdays and Sundays when your games have been postponed on account of rain and wet grounds they haven't been no rain or wet grounds over to Polk and Lincoln Sts., but it's been fair and warm all the while over there.

You won't get nothing but punk weather as long as you persist in playing them games so far away from Illinois, where it takes a man all day and half the night to get to and from the park. You better move your park back to where the good climates at or you will lose a lot of money. You better do this Chas.

Maybe you don't know it but they been a curse wished on you by some of us that lives west and the curse holds good till you move them Cubs back where they come from. Do this Chas, or you won't get no more weather all season and will half to play off a hole lot of double headers down to the Coliseum this winter. You better brings us back our Cubs Chas.

A FRIEND.

The sound of the heavy guns in the battle of Verdun was undoubtedly the loudest man-made noise that the world has ever known. It was heard at Ziegenhain, 188 miles away, even indoors with the windows shut.

WOMEN MAY SOON BE WEARING SOCKS.

PHILADELPHIA, May 17.—Brothers will have to hide their socks from their sisters this summer. That this precautionary measure will be necessary was gleaned today at the opening meeting of the convention here of the National Association of Hosiery and Underwear Manufacturers. Practically all the hosiery delegates agree women's stockings are shrinking in length. It is not young girls alone who favor half hose. J. D. Morely, of Boston, stated that at Atlantic City he noticed elderly women were turning down regular length hose to get the modified effect.
